Is trading with indicators and expert advisors risky or not?

Trading is risky. Your whole capital might be lost. When talking about using MT4 or MT5 indicators and expert advisors, the important thing is to learn about indicators and expert advisors.

In simple terms, an indicator is a program written in MQL language by a programmer. The accuracy rate of the indicator depends on the developer's experience, skills, and knowledge. Forex expert advisors (EAs) are also programs, but they usually work automatically without user's interaction.

Trading with indicators and expert advisors may be risky if you don't have proper knowledge and expertise. Our recommendation is to learn first. You can learn forex binary options via profX learning center and profX eBooks Collection. If you trade with indicators and EAs with proper experience it may be profitable for you.

ProfXindicators website has given you hundreds of free Forex, binary options MT4 / MT5 Indicators that you can use, test and experience. Starts trading on demo account first with these indicators and expert advisors. then you can try on real account if you are satisfied.
